

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to technologies for assessing a subject's susceptibility to development of a cardiovascular disorder. The invention further relates to methods for selecting therapeutics which will be optimally effective for treating patients suffering from a cardiovascular disorder. The invention also includes methods, compositions and kits useful for determining a patient's cholesteryl ester transfer protein (CETP) genotype.